Jarvis Projects

Project source code: https://github.com/jarviscanada/jarvis_data_eng_CatalinaGalan

Cluster Monitor [GitHub]: The Linux Cluster Monitoring Agent app is designed to record hardware specifications and usage information from multiple nodes in a Linux Cluster. It collects usage data from each node in real time and stores it in a RDBMS. The app was created for the Jarvis Linux Cluster Administration (LCA), to manage a cluster of 10 nodes internally connected through a switch. The team needs to record information and track the usage of each machine in the network.

Highlighted Projects

Frontrow [GitHub]: Frontrow is a social platform where fans can find, rate and review concerts, as well as interact, follow and connect with other fans. This was the final team project at Le Wagon bootcamp. It was developed in a two week sprint. As a participant in this project I collaborated in building the back-end and databases, created front-end elements and implemented the chat feature in its entirety.

My Portfolio [GitHub]: This website was developed as a personal project to showcase my work. It is a fully responsive website built from a single page template and transformed into a rails app with a PostgreSQL database. I have modified and restructured the original open source code to support my needs and preferences, creating new features such as show pages for my projects.
